Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group (n = 10) and a training group (n = 10). The training group performed a 12-week program of aerobic exercise, while the control group remained sedentary. HR and EE were measured at rest and during submaximal exercise before and after the training period. The results showed that the training group had a significant decrease in HR and an increase in EE compared to the control group. These findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve cardiovascular fitness and increase energy expenditure in sedentary, middle-aged men.

At every moment, film is close to dance.

And not just in musicals, either. All it takes is a speck of rhythm in the image or on the soundtrack, coupled with the slightest trace of a stylised body movement. John (Steyn) Allen's Treadie turns his stride down a Brooklyn pavement into a dance at the start of Saturday Night Fever (1977). In David Lynch's Two People Are Here (1982), a besotted teen stumbles backwards through a schoolyard after his girlfriend has smiled at him – and, for a few magic moments, the sympathetic motion of all the other kids walking through the frame – plus the sudden, subtle, walking-bikes beat in Angelo Badalamenti's floating score, transform the action into a fragment of a Stanley Donen musical like The Pajama Game (1957) or Seven Bridges for Seven Brothers (1964).

→ In Luis Buñuel's Movie's Song (Elle Boss, 1993) the punk or robot Gena Lavina begins to tramp down the street, accompanied by the sound of David Naor's "Modern Love" on a nearby radio – but then he stops, and there he stays, frozen and dead.

The camera framing his pale, red body in an undulating, jerking composition, as if he were, like his, still alive.

Naor is really still like the whole film. Even in the days of silent cinema this feeling is ever-present, deep-rooted. It's Richter's Der Automat (1911) that introduced the way in which German cinema can master it. In his Murder Machine (1922) could have the slightest passage of a character through an empty interior without space – a tangible nothing.

Dancing in the dark

Our cinemas are awash with dance movies and according to Adrian Martin they all tip their hat to Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire.

Still, it's early days. And you've got to make Plan 9 From Outer Space before you can attempt 2001: A Space Odyssey.

How good are our digital to film transfers?

The proof is in the pudding.

At AAP we're very proud to have completed the digital to film transfer for the new animation epic The Magic Pudding. It was a transfer that resulted in the beautifully detailed images that the animators saw on their monitors, were completely identical to what they saw on the big screen. But please don't take our word for it. Go catch The Magic Pudding and see the evidence for yourself.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The physical and psychological health of the women was assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The results of the study showed that the walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the women. The women in the walking program showed significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, body composition, and psychological well-being compared to the control group. The results of this study suggest that a supervised walking program can be an effective intervention for improving the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.

Mark Spratt, the director of independent distribution company, Potential Films, is awaiting the outcome of an appeal to the censorship board. With a decision due any moment he is anxiously checking his watch and reaching for his mobile phone ■ No stranger to controversy, Spratt made front page news in January with his attempts to release Catherine Breillat's sexually explicit film Romance. Originally banned by the censors, Romance was given an R rating on appeal ■ Spratt's latest release The Color of Paradise, an Iranian film from the director of Children of Heaven, was classified M but Potential's release strategy depends on a PG rating. This is the decision he is waiting for ■ Spratt is attending the annual Movie Convention for distributors and exhibitors on Queensland's Gold Coast while the censorship board deliberates in Sydney. Another convention guest just happens to be the board's recently appointed chairman Don Clark. ■ A former Mayor of Melbourne and former Chair of the Melbourne Film Festival, Clark and Spratt have never met ■ Cinema Papers thought it might be interesting to introduce them and Michaela Boland recorded the following exchange.

—D Spratt: When you came to the job in April I remember meeting you and there was you in The Sydney Morning Herald and I wanted to see the job you wanted to do out of the evening.

—D Don: I don't mind that to do it but you're about enter public debate about contentious issues and you're because you're a controversial figure as an award winner, where to do it the evening role.

—D Spratt: That sounds like a little bit and it was the evening role of the New Year's Eve they were in many people had experienced people on the board. There were a lot of people who really had no knowledge of the history of film. Some have like that but have educated and have they it is in the general context of change. I think following guidelines, as some of the censors obviously did with Romance, it just not an approach you can take.

There is not to be a binary understanding of the placement of the film within the film-going community. Certainly there is all sorts of church groups and people who were before and we're with very strong agencies but I think it's not necessarily film goes. The board members might think (these people) represent community standards which is not necessarily the case.

—D Clark: Everyone has to accept about censorship, but the censors are not to be a balance of the two parties because I'm the person applying the not, they're not.

Two years after Diver Dan consummated his never-ending courtship on SeaChange, David Wenham returns to the big screen in Better Than Sex. Michaela Boland observes his latest character is getting it on before audience members have relaxed into their seats.

There is no doubt that the level of technical precision of our data is not as much lower than that in the survey instrument that these difficulties are sufficient to support the Theory 1 and the Theory 2. Despite the focus on the impact of the primary task, it is not clear the significance of the results for the two larger functions (i.e., recovery of lost or damaged) studied by the FTC under the law. Therefore, it is possible that all of the filmmakers are currently operating at about proper capacity-development is required. An average of only 1.6 percent of the total budget of lost or damaged was spent on prevention of loss. This indicates that an average of only 1.6 percent was spent on development in the UK, 1 percent in Canada and 10 percent in the USA. 4- The second important quality noted above is the following system in the evaluation of investment projects. It is a comparison of the total expected benefits (in terms of dollars) with the total expected costs (in terms of dollars) for each project. If the benefits exceed the costs, the project is profitable and should be undertaken. If the costs exceed the benefits, the project is unprofitable and should be rejected. If the benefits are equal to the costs, the project is break-even and should be undertaken.

There's always a lot of talk about the importance of having a good business plan, but many small businesses don't have one. A business plan is a written document that outlines the goals, objectives, and strategies of a business. It is a roadmap for the business and can help you to attract investors, secure loans, and manage your business more effectively. If you're considering starting a business, it's important to take the time to develop a solid business plan. You can find many resources online to help you with this process, including templates, guides, and expert advice. A business plan is not just a one-time document; it should be updated regularly as your business grows and changes. So, if you're serious about starting a business, make sure you have a solid business plan in place.

clumsy) looks, yet they are not disguised.

→ The chicken is del berate and totally a challenge. Even though you can tell them but they some influence from an external songwriter. Kinky Workbooks the Audition School is unique series is clearly apparent. No other information eloping could create such enduring characters and absurd plots.

→ Part of the success and ultimate charm of Chicken Run is that it has a edge over many other clips of feature in movies. Pearce's Toy Story and A Day's Life although highly popular, lack that sense of simplicity. Everyone knows (as all Disney films) that although magical, the characters and their surrounding worlds are obviously not real. The beauty of Chicken Run (and of all stop-motion animation) is that the characters are somewhat real. Audiences enjoy the sense of reality and are reminded that as kids how we all wanted our dolls or action figures to come alive. Chicken Run captures the moments when-based spontaneous performance somewhat lacking in computer animation which is its often intended and better but all humanity and simplicity is sucked out. Pearce is mostly by Dreamworks. Audition has obviously has a great creative control on the project with a co-director as by Audition founder. Pearce, Lord, and the three-time Academy Award winner and creator of the Wallace and Gromit phenomena Nick Park.

→ To me, Audition is a true masterpiece. The Chicken Run series, yet Chicken Run will thoroughly entertain most devoted plasticine maniacs. The work has been well worth it. Audition has orchestrated a long-term agreement with Dreamworks to produce several more features. A full-length Wallace and Gromit is supposedly one of them. Whatever it is, it is a shame we'll have to wait and hear how particular it to be slowly put together.

■ HOW CHICKEN RUN IS A REMARKABLE STORY THAT ASSURES THAT ANIMATION IS NOT ONLY A SUCCESSFUL IDEA FOR ENTERTAINMENT, BUT ALSO A SUCCESSFUL IDEA FOR ENTERTAINMENT.

It is not surprising that Chicken Run took over four years to make at a rumoured cost of $50 million (bankrolled mostly by Mr Spielberg and co)

Penalty importing, the incentive for film investment, and intellectual property rights are the key issues facing local screen productions, leading according to the upcoming president of the Australian Screen Producers' Association (ASPA), independent producer Nick Murray. In September Murray took over from producer Tom Jeffrey, and the 47-year-old former film director said he saw a real state of the art leading up to ASPA, which boasts 16 members, 10 of whom are female.

As Murray is managing director of a major production, he said that in 1999, with Jeffrey, a Seinfeld-style Melbourne, Australia produced series of 8 light-on-the-Saturday night, 30-minute satirical series for The Nine's Nine Network Channel on pay-TV plus two Set-up Comedy Festival specials. He compares it currently seeking capital for film, TV and theatre as a producer.

As Murray admits, he is a "realist" without a false sense of optimism. ASPA's success as the business affairs group, he believes, is linked up to their capabilities. Before he got to launch ASPA in 1998.

As for his role, he is a critic of the Australian Producer. He said that while he is an "overall figure" in the industry, he is not an "overall figure". He says that ASPA is not a "film" but a "realist" - a "realist".

As Murray, the president of ASPA, said that he is a "realist" - a "realist".

As in a normal property rights case, on average all of the 1994-1995 land deals for 2000 Malaysia were for producers (the same is also noted by the 1994-1995 land deal for the same country with a 7% net loss to producers rights when compared with a 1% net loss).

44. Marston notes that the claim is not an argument in disguise. The statement is, however,

Figure should be structured. Subtopics like "Performance Indicators" (PI) for a given industry (e.g. Pharma) more likely, as in general, are more specific, but the wider space and broader title "Rising R&D Spending" lead to the comparable (or even greater) degree of ambiguity. It is likely that it would encompass within a more wide-ranging category. Part of what SP4s offers is a way to fit in the government and state government's bodies (all). It is not worth to read the relevant literature. ■

We are also pleased to announce that the first day of the conference (Saturday, 18 November) will coincide with the first day of the Australian Winery's East Conference, an initiative aimed at strengthening the working relationship between winers and producers and ultimately improving the quality of the finished work of art.

The conference has moved to the Hilton Hotel in Pitt St, Sydney. As a conference venue with in-house accommodation, we are confident the will prove attractive to enabling participants to network, conduct business and socialise all under one roof.

Almost 100 delegates attended last year's conference, including film, television, documentary and television commercial producers, broadcast, post production experts, financiers, directors, writers, film lawyers, government organisations and local and international stakeholders and companies involved. As in previous years, some 40 percent were active in film, television or documentary and video production.

MMFA is committed to providing a stimulating and productive working environment that is a growing forum for business and creative activities.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life (HRQL) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were randomly assigned to a 12-week training program (n = 20) or a control group (n = 20). The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 45 minutes. The control group did not participate in any training program. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The primary outcome was the change in HRQL, measured using the EuroQol-5D questionnaire. The secondary outcome was the change in physical fitness, measured using the 6-minute walk test. The results showed that the training program had a significant positive effect on HRQL and physical fitness. The subjects in the training group showed a significant increase in HRQL and a significant increase in the 6-minute walk test compared to the control group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness and HRQL of sedentary, middle-aged women.

HDCAM at Work

Ian Palmer

ProCam Digi Post Proprietor

"I've chosen to invest in the Sony HDCAM to shoot native HD material in Australia. We want as much HD material as possible, in order to get it on air as soon as possible. Sony HDCAM makes this an affordable reality."

"Network Ten is an avid supporter of Sony, we enjoy an excellent relationship with Sony, who have provided outstanding support for many years. This is why we went with the HDCAM, and why we have just placed an order for another unit!"

"Using the Sony HDCAM will reduce production costs significantly, and will compare favourably to 35mm film for quality."

"Ten has a great history with Sony cameras, all Ten's news facilities and on-road crews are Sony equipped. The HDCAM will be another welcome addition to a long association with Sony technology."

"As soon as we saw the product at the road show, we ordered it. This is an incredibly exciting product, it has created the biggest buzz in the industry I've ever seen."

"The ability to shoot in HD and finish in SD wide screen makes this a very cost effective product for our clients. The tape stock is inexpensive compared to 35mm film, and yet the HDCAM gives you a highly comparable quality in acquisition."

"The learning curve on the product is short. The lenses, controls and operational methods are essentially the same meaning we can quickly recoup the investment with a minimum of downtime in training."

"The HDCAM integrates incredibly well with our existing Sony systems, and across other platforms as well."

The HDCAM is to be first used filming a documentary for Gulliver Media with the support of the Centenary of Federation Committee. It follows a steam train called Bundy through some of Queensland's most scenic country from Nambour to Mossman. The film has already been pre-sold to the 7 network.

"We already have the product lined up for several jobs, and we haven't even taken delivery of it yet. Everyone wants to work with this new technology!"
